The Training in Contemporary Psychoanalytic Psychotherapy

SEMINAR – 8TH MARCH 2014

“Infanticide, Suicide or Matricide: Towards a psychoanalytic understanding of a single diagnosis entity”

Presented by

Dr Carine Minne

Dr Carine Minne is Consultant Psychiatrist in Forensic Psychotherapy at Broadmoor Hospital, west London Mental Health NHS Trust and the Portman Clinic, Tavistock & Portman NHS Foundation Trust. She is also a psychoanalyst with the British Psychoanalytical Society. She is the Training Director for the North West London Specialist Registrar forensic psychotherapy training. One of her particular interests is in providing long-term continuity of psychotherapy to patients across the different levels of security they pass through and continuing when they are back living in the community.

Suggested Reading for this seminar:

Primary Reading:

2. “Unprovoked Assaults: Making sense of apparently random violence”. Leslie Sohn. This is in the IJPA but is also in the book “Reason & Passion: A celebration of the work of Hannah Segal” edited by David Bell, Tavistock Clinic Series, Revised edition 2004

Background Reading:

3. “As background reading for the interested and not necessarily for before my seminar I'd recommend Richard Lucas' book “The Psychotic Wavelength” and in particular, chapter 11. – Dr Carine Minne”
